Editorial Review

About the Author

Federico Molano was born in Bogota' (Santa Fe de Bogota') Colombia. He witnessed first hand the cruelty injustice and indifference of the political and corporate class of his country, and that of Latin America. As a Dr. in Political Sciences and laws and a Ministry of Defense high ranking Officials secretary, and later broadcaster hard working loving but strict mother son, he was punished as his brothers by reading the classics or withstand the belt of discipline. Night time became conversations and dialogues of the readings done through the day. The youngest of his brothers he grew up to become the unpredictable son of society and circumstances. His popularity came to be among his friends as the center of attention in many ways. At age 16 he was already versed in religions, underground and esoteric mysticism, thanks to the influence of elder acquaintances with whom debates about life, afterlife, religions and the cosmos were the highlights of his early apologetics at the top of the tallest trees in the hills of his neighborhood. life will change his path as a young popular and admired figure. A survivor of many trials and events in his life,he worked as a reporter for a local broadcaster at issues such as the penitentiary crisis in Colombia, the assassination of transgenders in the urban communities, the social crisis that lead poor peoples to crime. He covered prostitution, thief gangs, drug addiction and documented the terrorist attacks in the Pablo Escobar era among other reports at his on peril and risk. He also worked as a urban missionary in many cities, in prisons (PPCC), and in some instances in guerrilla zones in the province of Cundinamarca, and Guatape Antioquia and covered the Peace Process between the FARC and the conservative government of President Andres Pastrana for an international audience. As News Anchorman translated (to Spanish) the events of 9/11 as they happened. He left to Canada where he became a pressure welder for the Oil and gas Industry and later a Canadian citizen. His life still stands as an example of tenacity and never give up attitude. The facts of his life are still to be written as an ongoing reality against the odds and as a down to earth individual, that you can say, moves between two worlds.
