Intoxicated (Felony Romance Book 1) By Jeana E. Mann

An uptight accountant.

An irresistible bartender.

An attraction complicated by secrets, obligations, and broken promises.

THIS BOOK IS NOT ABOUT ADULTERY.

A few minutes past midnight on a hot June night, Ally Taylor turns out the lights of her office, catches a cab to the seamy side of town, and slides onto a barstool at Felony Bar, a notorious underground club. The bartender, Jack Jameson, slides a gin and tonic across the counter before she says a word because he already knows what she likes. When he leaves, her gaze follows him. His broad shoulders, tattoos and dreamy dark eyes promise everything missing from her life. Spontaneity. Promiscuity. Adventure. He is the green grass on the other side of her self-imposed fence, a tempting dish she covets but would never taste. As much as she's attracted to him, it's hard to forget that she was engaged to someone else a week ago, especially when that someone is making out with her ex-best friend at the end of the bar.

She needs to shake off the illicit thoughts Jack inspires, but when he nods toward a secret door, inviting her into the darkness, she follows. He's the devil, and she's the unwilling sinner. She wants to taste him, feel him, use him to forget all the pain of her broken engagement. He presses her against the wall, hands gliding beneath her skirt. Never one for wild decisions, she's torn between desire and common sense, love and lust.

Jack likes female companionship, someone to take away the ache of emptiness he feels most of the time. One-night stands are a dime a dozen at Felony, but he's not a kid anymore and he's tired of waking up in someone else's bed. Ally's calm and cool control fuels the animal inside him. He yearns to break that control, to get a taste of the passion lurking inside her. In spite of his playboy ways, he wants more than sex, more than temporary, more than meaningless. Can he find what he needs in Ally?

As their relationship unfolds, the choices become more and more difficult. They both have painful secrets. Neither of them wants to commit, but they can't stop the way they feel about each other. When love comes calling, they may not have a choice.

Intoxicated is an adult erotic romance about misguided allegiance, painful truths, and relentless attraction. Subject matter deals with drug addiction, blended families, and mental illness. It contains adult situations, adult language, and hot sex. It is a standalone, complete novel with a “happy for now” ending.
